Strengthening Workplace Civility: Preventing and Stopping Workplace Bullying

Wednesday, June 3, 2009 | 10:00am - 12:00pm PDT | At anywhere with internet access

A recent U.S. study estimates 1 in 5 American workers has experienced destructive bullying in the past year.

Workplace incivility can be defined as a rude or discourteous act, and/or the practice of behaviors that undermine the credibility and productivity of others. A workplace bully subjects the target to unjustified criticism, destructive gossip, and trivial fault-finding. In addition, he or she humiliates the target, especially in front of others, and ignores, overrules, isolates and excludes the target. Finally, workplace bullies intimidate or subject co-workers to hostility or ill treatment. These actions cause another person to feel afraid, humiliated, embarrassed, threatened or shamed.
